Fair and Complete Hearing Will Be Given by Governor Slaton.

Responding to the request of Mayor E. D. Cleary and forty citizens, Governor Slaton declared last night that he will accord Julian Zachry, of Harlem, Ga., a full hearing before he honors the requisition Governor Cole Blaise, of South Carolina, has issued for the return of the prisoner to Columbia county.

"Every accused is entitled to a hearing before being returned on requisition papers," Governor Slaton said. "Friends of Zachry need have no fear that he will not get from me a fair and complete hearing."

Governor Slaton sent his assurances to Mayor Cleary Sunday afternoon. Zachry is charged, according to the telegram sent to Governor Slaton by Governor Blaise, with being a fugitive from justice. The charges, it is alleged, grew out of the separation of Zachry from his wife, who is now in Columbia, S. C. Zachry instituted habeas corpus proceedings in South Carolina and was awarded the custody of his eldest child. Friends fought the officers when they took the child from her. Zachry carried the child one out of the state of South Carolina.

1 KILLED AND 4 HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

Waterbury, Conn., August 3.—One police officer was killed, a police commissioner probably fatally hurt and three men more or less seriously injured today when an automobile in which they were riding was overturned near Seymour while returning from New Haven.

Robert P. Kierstedt, a policeman, was the man who lost his life. William A. Johnson, police commissioner, received internal injuries which may cause his death. Henry Johnson, secretary of voters, Christopher Dunphy and Alphonse Vallone were less seriously hurt. The automobile was crossing a bridge and the roadway was slippery. As the wheels skidded, one struck a small mound of dirt and the machine upset.

CONCEALS ROBBERY FROM HUSBAND

Mrs. JOHN H. HANAN

Following the discovery of the daring jewel thefts at Narragansett Pier, in which nearly a quarter of a million dollars' worth of gems were stolen, millinaire residents hastened to double guard their homes and keep close watch on their servants. The announcement that $150,000 worth of jewels had been stolen alone from the home of John H. Hanan, the shoe manufacturer, created the biggest flurry. A strange incident of the robbery at Shore Acres, the home of the Hanans, was that three valuable bracelets, a pearl and diamond scarfpin and a ruby and diamond St. Anthony's charm, although in the drawers with the other jewels, were not disturbed. The maid, a trusted servant, was in constant attendance in the room and absent only fifteen minutes. During which time the jewels were stolen. Nothing in the room was disturbed, and there were no signs of any one having broken into the house. Mr. Hanan and his nurse, in an adjoining room, heard nothing. Mr. Hanan is currently at Shore Acres, and the news of the robbery has been withheld from him by Mrs. Hanan.

KILL THE FLIES SAYS STATE HEALTH BOARD

Screen Your Houses, and Cover Up Filthy Places Where Flies Breed and Feed.

The housefly will eventually become as extinct as the mammoth and dinosaurs, if people will only wake up to the realization of what a horribly dangerous and filthy thing the fly is, declares the Georgia state board of health.

Despite its tiny size, the common fly is a monster infinitely more deadly than any of the extinct beasts of prehistoric times. There are about twelve varieties of flies known in Georgia, but they are all alike in the respect that they carry disease.

The most common fly of all is the ordinary housefly, called the musca domestica by scientists—and by various other names by the backwoods men. This fly is familiar to everybody, complains about 55 per cent of the flies found in garbage cans, dining rooms, stables, kitchens and so on. The remaining 2 per cent of flies in Georgia is principally made up of the blue bottle fly, sometimes called the blow fly or meat fly. But they are all disease breeders alike.

The fly has the most filthy habits of any living creature. He doesn't care what he gets his meals or what he eats. He had just as soon eat the bread and vegetables and meat on your plate, and he had actually been known to eat some nauseating and unpalatable kind of food—which is just where the trouble lies. If the fly would stick to other kinds of diet, he would not be so dangerous. But the trouble is a fly make part of his meal on vomit, vomit, unless you keep him from it, he will fly through your window and make his desert on your jam or rice pudding, or on the table of the miller. He will wipe his dirty feet on it and leave the disease germs he brought from filth.

Not Theories, But Facts. In the hot summer, when flies are most plentiful, the average person's theories are more numerous than theories and mere words, says the state board of health. And that they are actual facts, and that one fly eating on your food is a deadly abomination, such a sentiment would be of little use, if it did not lead to every illness and death in human beings.

For a man to lay two hundred eggs during the course of three hundred and sixty-five days is considered pretty good, but for a fly to lay one hundred eggs during the course of one day is nothing unusual. In fact, it is stated by the United States government expert that a fly lays on the average of one hundred and twenty eggs at a time, and that each female fly lays four such batches. This expert also states that these eggs hatch out into maggots and become full grown flies in ten days and begin to lay eggs themselves and raise up families.

Flies want all the food they can get to hatch them; they are too busy carrying disease around to waste time that way. And, besides, in dirty places they have always found that human beings were willing to look after these little details for them by leaving horse manure around, by letting garbage cans stay open, and by leaving other filth and refuse uncovered.

In time to come, however, and that not very far off, the board predicts that the fly will become a thing of the past. Human beings have gotten wise to the dangerous ways and have learned to keep garbage cans, soil barrels and other refuse containers covered or screened.

Methods of Killing Them. In the meantime, the state board of health earnestly calls on the individual people of Georgia, and on the health officials of towns and cities to do their share of this important work. The state board of health gives the following hints, suggesting a practical and serviceable in killing flies: Fly Poison—Dissolve one dram of bicarbonate of potash in 2 ounces of water, add sugar or honey, place in a saucer, where children cannot get to it, as it is slightly poisonous. The flies drink it and die. Another effective fly poison is made by placing a teaspoonful of formalin in a saucer of water, to which milk or sugar or honey has been added. This should also be placed out of reach of children, as it is likewise somewhat poisonous.

To Make Fly Paper—Boil 2 pounds of ordinary paper in a pint of castor oil and apply with a brush to the paper or to any surface desired to be used to catch flies. This makes an excellent and effective fly paper.

SEVEN-FOOT RATTLESN KILLED NEAR TITTON

Titton, Ga., August 3.—The giant rattlesnake for this section of the state was killed yesterday by J. J. Cotney, a young farmer who lives about a mile north of Titton. The snake measured exactly 7 feet from the tip of its nose to the end of its rattles, and was 12 inches in circumference. It had seven rattles, some of them having evidently been broken off as is often the case with large rattles.

Mr. Cotney came upon the snake as it was crossing a branch road near the national highway, and killed it with a small green stick. The reptile was in a coil when Mr. Cotney struck him, and the first blow on the head rendered it helpless. The snake was about 12 inches longer than its slayer.

New York, August 3.—After eluding a policeman waiting to arrest him on the complaint of his wife, Harry G. Elliott, a lithographer, 31 years old, accompanied by Miss Sibley, 29 years old, last night went to a point in Macomb's Dam park known as "Lovers' Leap," where early today Elliott killed his companion and ended his own life by shooting. A note found nearby signed by both read: "To whom it may concern: A note found here to certify that we two have agreed to die together. We have aimed, but we love each other, and sooner than part we die together. Our wish is that our bodies will not be parted in death."

Elliott and Miss Sibley came here about two weeks ago from Chicago. Mrs. Elliott appeared at their boarding house. While Mrs. Elliott and a policeman waited at the entrance Elliott and Miss Sibley nipped over the roofs of an adjoining house. Mrs. Elliott could not be found today.

EMBARGO ON ARMS MAY BE REPEALED

Following Huerta's Defiance, United States May Allow Shipment of Munitions to the Mexican Insurgents.

Washington, August 3.—Official Washington read with interest today the declaration of Aureliano Estrada, Mexican minister of the interior, that provisional President Huerta would not resign, and more over, would bring no interference by the United States in his administration.

While no plan that the American government has had under serious consideration involved any direct interference in Mexican affairs, the admitted attitude of the administration here is one of unalterable opposition to the one of Huerta's regime.

Without the recognition of the United States, leading Mexican insurgents have claimed that they could not be able to extricate themselves from the military situation in Mexico, and a provisional President Huerta, who has been brought in here to persuade the United States to recognize him, has been unable to obtain the repeal of the embargo on arms. The claim is that if the embargo is lifted, the United States will be able to obtain the repeal of the embargo on arms. ## STRIKERS ARE FIGHTING FOR UNION RECOGNITION Situation in the Copper Mine Region Grows More Complicated.

Calumet, Mich., August 3.—Conferees in Hancock and Calumet today officials and officers of the Michigan State Federation of Labor complicated the situation in the copper mine strike. It was reported that one of the strikers at the sessions was P. F. Ingram, of Detroit, who was present as the representative of Governor Ferris. In a great effort by the state executive to bring into harmony the warring industrial elements of this district.

None of the men at the conference would discuss the meeting, all saying they were not authorized to do so. The numerous assurances that grew from the executive board of the mine owners, which was the state Federation of Labor, were not accepted by the strikers. The strikers found a way to get the mine back to work, and the mine owners were forced to accept the strikers' demands.

At the same time, practical recognition of the union was refused by the mine owners. The strikers were not satisfied with the mine owners' offer, and they were not willing to accept it. The strikers were not satisfied with the mine owners' offer, and they were not willing to accept it.
